

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe ways of solving problems and getting things done in social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What kinds of things cause stress in your life?
- When you are really stressed out, what do you do to relax?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about hypothetical situations about the past.
- I can shift emphasis by using what, who, or that.
- I can quote other people.

Let's Explore!

Sally says TGIF!

* "TGIF" means Thank God It's Friday and you say it to show you are happy the weekend is here.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Well, the week is finally over.
- Sally: TGIF! What an emotional week. I'm drained!
- Vanessa: Me too! That we both managed to get through some difficult situations is amazing!
- Sally: What's important is that we learned something from our experiences. We both learned that we need to use our emotional intelligence to gauge others' emotional states and then react appropriately.
- Vanessa: : I could have used this information earlier, but better late than never! It's something we can continue to work on, isn't it?
- Sally: Yes, it would've been great to be aware of ways to improve communication with people. What's frustrating is that apparently not many people seem interested in working on this part of their personalities.
- Vanessa: Well, we are, and for that we deserve a reward! What should we do this weekend to relax?
- Sally: A friend at work told me that she was going to get a massage. What would be great would be to spend the day immersed in luxury in a spa.
- Vanessa: Great idea! We should have made a reservation. You could have gotten a massage and pedicure. I would have gotten a facial. And I told you that I would pay the next time we went to the spa.
- Sally: Now I'm disappointed that we didn't think of this sooner. My friend said she had really enjoyed this spa.
- Vanessa: I'll book it for next week.
- Sally: I can't wait!

Let's Practice!

What information is the most important in these sentences?

Instructions: Unscramble the words to find the mystery sentence.

1) . / spend / be great / would / spa / a to / the / What / in / be would day

2) both / amazing / some situations / to / we / get / That / difficult / managed / ! / through is

3) learned / our / from / important / experiences / we / . / that / is / something / What's

4) . / not many / people / What's / their / that / this part / in / working on / frustrating / is / interested / seem / of personalities

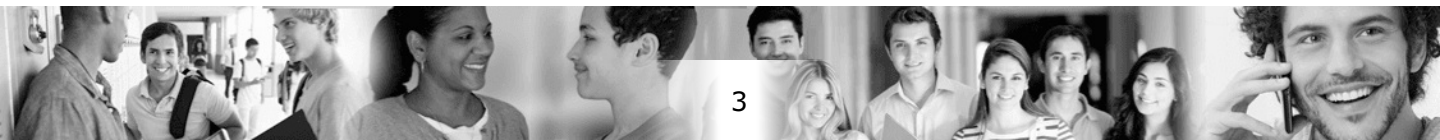

Let's Practice!

Sally and Vanessa missed out on a relaxing day at the spa.

Instructions: Read the sentences below. Practice reading them aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- 1) I could have used this information earlier, but better late than never!
- 2) Yes, it would have been great to be aware of ways to improve communication with people
- 3) We should have made a reservation.
- 4) You could have gotten a massage and pedicure.
- 5) I would have gotten a facial.

Extension Activity

Plan a relaxing weekend.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write down some things that you like to do to relax.
- Make a schedule for the weekend to relax after a difficult week. Include at least 6 different activities.
- Share your schedule with a partner.
- Report what your partner has scheduled to the class (using reported speech).

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about hypothetical situations about the past.

☐ ☐

I shift emphasis by using what, who, or that.

☐ ☐

I use reported speech.

☐ ☐

I make a schedule of activities and report what my partner said.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- drained (adjective): very tired
e.g. I'm drained from an emotional week!
- to gauge (verb): to make a judgement about e.g. We both learned that we need to use our emotional intelligence to gauge others' emotional states and then react appropriately.
- aware (adjective): knowing that something exists e.g. Yes, it would have been great to be aware of ways to improve communication with people.
- apparently (adverb): used to describe something that appears to be true based on what is known e.g. What's frustrating is that apparently not many people seem interested in working on this part of their personalities.
- immersed (verb): to fully involve yourself in an activity
e.g. What would be great would be to spend the day immersed in luxury in a spa.
- disappointed (adjective): the state of feeling sad, unhappy about or displeased with something e.g. Now I'm disappointed that we didn't think of this sooner.
- I can't wait (expression): to be very excited about a future event
e.g. I can't wait for our next adventure!

Learning Points

Talking Hypothetically About the Past

You use could have, should have and would have to talk about things that were possible in the past and may or may not have happened.

The structure:

Subject + modal verb + have + verb (past participle)

I could have done

You should have made

She would have said

You use could have to talk about the possibilities of how something in the past could have been different.

For example: I could have used this information earlier.

You use should have to talk about past events that did not happen and to speculate about events that may or may not have happened.

For example: We should have made a reservation.

You use should not have to speculate negatively about what may or may not have happened.

You also use should not have to express regret for past actions.

You use would have to express and imagine how a result might have been different in the past.

For example: I would have gotten a facial.

* Would have is used when we are more certain about a result than could have.

Examples:

- I could have used this information earlier.
- It would have been great to be aware of ways to improve communication with people.
- We should have made a reservation.
- You could have gotten a massage and pedicure.
- I would have gotten a facial.

Learning Points

What Clauses and Long Noun Phrases as Subjects

You shift emphasis from the beginning to another part of the sentence by using what, that and who phrases as subjects.

Usually, you focus on the subject - that is the person or thing that is doing the action.

Example: Joan told a hilarious joke.

(Joan does the action.)

When you want to emphasize a different part of the sentence, you isolate that part and we put the rest of the information into a what-phrase (or a that-clause.)

Example: What was hilarious, was the joke Joan told.

That with the subject from the original sentence becomes the subordinated content clause.

Example: That she imitated our teacher was funny.

What or Who begins the noun phrase. The effect is that more emphasis is placed on the information at the end of the sentence.

Example:

What was hilarious was her imitation of the teacher.

Who she should have made fun of was the principal.

Examples:

- That we both managed to get through some difficult situations is amazing!
- What's important is that we learned something from our experiences.
- What's frustrating is that apparently not many people seem interested in working on this part of their personalities.
- What would be great would be to spend the day immersed in luxury in a spa.

