

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Criticism is hard to take.

Learning Outcome

Relate information about common solutions to problems in spoken or written documents.

Ask your partner:

- What is the best way to deal with criticism from your boss?
- What is constructive criticism and how can it be beneficial?

Can Do Statements

- I can write about reactions and behavior.
- I can shift emphasis by using what, who, or that.
- I can ask for clarification and confirmation.

Let's Explore!

Sally says enough is enough!

* We say "enough is enough" when we can't tolerate any more of something.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Hello?
- Sally: That's it! Enough is enough!
- Vanessa: Sally! What's wrong? You haven't told off someone else on the bus, have you?
- Sally: Ha ha. No. But my week is the pits. That I haven't completely lost it is a miracle!
- Vanessa: Get it all off your chest. I'm all ears.
- Sally: So I met with my boss and I printed some information about emotional intelligence and I gave it to her. What she needs is to increase her emotional intelligence.
- Vanessa: You didn't tell her that, did you?
- Sally: No! I'm not deranged, am I?
- Vanessa: So how did she respond to you?
- Sally: Not well. What she thought was that I was criticizing her. I tried to explain the concept and that when people have emotional intelligence, they function better and achieve more in the work environment.
- Vanessa: She didn't want to listen, did she? She doesn't seem like she's very receptive to change.
- Sally: No. She was really resistant to what I had to say. She made me feel really insignificant. In fact, what she said was that I was wasting her time.
- Vanessa: Sally, the important thing is that you are making an effort to improve yourself. You attempted to share your enthusiasm with the wrong person. It's her loss, isn't it? You just have to let it go.
- Sally: You're right. Who I have to feel good about is helping myself!
- Vanessa: That's the spirit!

Let's Practice!

Can you shift emphasis in a sentence?

Instructions: Complete the sentences below by choosing from the options you are given.

- 1) _____ I haven't completely lost it is a miracle!
- 2) _____ she needs is to increase her emotional intelligence.
- 3) _____ she thought was that I was criticizing her.
- 4) In fact, _____ she said was that I was wasting her time.
- 5) _____ I have to feel good about helping is myself!

Word Bank

- That
- Who
- What
- Was
- That
- What
- who

Let's Practice!

Sally's week has been the pits.

Instructions: Match the words on the left with their definitions on the right.

- | | |
|------------------|----------------------------|
| 1) resistant | a) unable to act normally |
| 2) told off | b) can't tolerate anymore |
| 3) achieve | c) willing to accept ideas |
| 4) Deranged | d) eager to listen |
| 5) Unimportant | e) enough is enough |
| 6) Receptive | f) opposed to something |
| 7) to reprimand | g) all ears |
| 8) insignificant | h) reach a goal |

Extension Activity

Transcribe a dialogue in reported speech.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- On the Internet, watch a movie or TV show with a lot of dialogue between two people.
- Choose a dialogue section that is about 20 seconds long.
- Listen to the section as many times as you need.
- Write down the dialogue using reported speech.
- Practice reading the dialogue aloud with a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write about reactions and behavior.

☐ ☐

I shift emphasis by using what, who, or that.

☐ ☐

I ask for clarification and confirmation.

☐ ☐

I transcribe a dialogue in reported speech.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to tell someone off (verb): to reprimand or scold someone e.g. You haven't told off someone else on the bus, have you?
- to be all ears (expression): to be ready to listen to something that someone is going to say e.g. I'm all ears.
- deranged (adjective): unable to think or act in a normal or logical way
e.g. I'm not deranged, am I?
- to lose it (expression): to become very angry or emotionally upset e.g. That I haven't completely lost it is a miracle!
- to achieve (verb): to reach something by working hard e.g. When people have emotional intelligence, they function better and achieve more in the work environment.
- resistant (adjective): opposed to something e.g. She was really resistant to hearing what I had to say.
- insignificant (adjective): small or unimportant
e.g. She made me feel really insignificant.
- receptive (adjective): willing to listen or accept ideas
e.g. She doesn't seem like she's very receptive to change.

Learning Points

What Clauses and Long Noun Phrases as Subjects

You change emphasis from the beginning of the sentence to another part of the sentence when you use what, that and who phrases as subjects.

Usually, you focus on the subject - that is the person or thing that is doing the action.

Example: Joan told a hilarious joke.

(Joan does the action.)

When you want to emphasize a different part of the sentence, you isolate that part and we put the rest of the information into a what-phrase (or a that-clause.)

Example: What was hilarious, was the joke Joan told.

That with the subject from the original sentence becomes the subordinated content clause. This clause functions as the subject of a sentence.

Example: That she imitated our teacher was funny.

What or Who begins the noun phrase. The effect is that more emphasis is placed on other information.

Example:

What was hilarious was her imitation of the teacher.

Who she should have made fun of was the principal.

Examples:

- That I haven't completely lost it is a miracle!
- What she needs is to increase her emotional intelligence.
- What she thought is that I was criticizing her.
- What she said was that I was wasting her time.
- Who I have to feel good about helping is myself!

Tag Questions

You use tag questions to ask for clarification and confirmation.

A tag question is a short question that comes at the end of a statement.

It is often used when we want to:

- confirm whether or not something is true, or
- to get a reply from someone we are speaking to.

A positive statement comes before a negative tag question.

Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'yes'.

- You were taken by surprise, weren't you?

Learning Points

- You are Canadian, aren't you?
- She has a brother, doesn't she?
- He can speak English, can't he?

A negative statement comes before a positive tag question.
Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'.

- You weren't taken by surprise, were you?
- You aren't Canadian, are you?
- She doesn't have a brother, does she?
- He can't speak Spanish, can he?

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will be the same.
For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does or did/didn't.

Look at the examples in the chart:

Main Verb	Tag
He is/was	isn't/wasn't he?
You are	aren't you?
He can	can't he?
We could	couldn't we?
You will	won't you?
She has/had	doesn't/didn't she?
You have	don't you?
He likes	doesn't he?
You like	don't you?
You liked	didn't you?

Examples:

- You haven't told off someone else on the bus, have you?
- You didn't tell her that, did you?
- I'm not deranged, am I?
- She didn't want to listen, did she?
- It's her loss, isn't it?

Learning Points

